

brave

where you are

Dreaming Big

We are strong women. Whether you are quiet or outgoing, whether you are easily embarrassed or love being the center of attention, or whether you love sports, art, or both, it doesn't matter. No matter who you are or what your personality is, there isn't anything you can't do. You are strong and smart and capable.

Write a fictional story of a character based off of yourself who accomplishes something amazing.

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

Handwriting practice lines consisting of 18 horizontal dashed lines.

How does this make you feel? When you think about how you are powerful and strong, what kinds of things go through your mind?

A series of horizontal dashed lines for writing.

You can have any job or career that you want. If you could be anything in the world, what would that be?

Draw a picture of you, proud and strong, doing your dream job. Do you wear a specific uniform like a police officer? Do you need specific tools like an artist or architect? Draw all of that here.

Now that you are thinking about what type of career you want to have (just know that you can change your mind at any time, and a lot of adults even change their minds. So no pressure to stick to this forever), what do you need to get there? Do you need to take specialized classes, join a club, or find someone to mentor you?

What will it take for you to accomplish your dreams? Do some research on what that job needs. Is it college? What different universities offer programs in that field of study? Do an internet search on which colleges you might attend to accomplish your dreams. Day dream about going there. Picture yourself walking to your classes and laughing with your new friends. Write a list of things you are looking forward to when you dream about this future.

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----

-----